Formal ceremonies dedicating Los Angeles County's newly-completed courthouse building in Redondo Beach will be conducted Wednesday morning, April 16, Supervisor Raymond V. Darby announced yesterday.

William E. McFaden, prominent Redondo Beach attorney and past president of the Inglewood-South Bay Cities Bar Association, was named by Supervisor Darby to serve as chairman of the Committee on Arrangements. The building is located at 1231 N. Pacific Ave.

A feature of the dedication will be the appearance on the speaking program of Jean Hersholt, famous for his role of

"Dr. Christian" in films and on the radio. The ceremonies are scheduled for 9 a.m. Officially known as the South Bay Cities Civic Center Building, the edifice will house the South Bay Justice Court which is being transferred from Gardena to its new home in Redondo.

The court, which serves six cities and five unincorporated communities, will be abolished Jan. 1, and in turn replaced by the two new municipal courts that will start operating on that date. One court will be located in the new building. Location for the other has not yet been chosen.

Representatives of the many organizations in the huge judicial district, including chambers of commerce, veterans groups, the press and the judiciary, are to participate in the ceremonies.

Cities in the district, in addition to Redondo, are Manhattan Beach, Hermosa Beach, Gardena, Palos Verdes Estates and Torrance, and the unincorporated communities comprise Lawndale, Lomita, Rolling Hills, Portuguese Bend and El Nido. The district is bounded by Rosecrans on the north, the ocean on the west and south and Western Ave. on the east. Its population is more than 100,000.

Judge John A. Shidler of the Justice Court will participate in the program along with representatives of cities in the district and of the county and state. The building was erected at a cost of nearly $100,000 and is a frame and stucco building with one courtroom, jury room, judge's chambers and space for the county clerk and county marshal's offices.

Economy Run Course to Idaho Includes All Road Conditions

The course for the 1952 Mobilgas Economy Run will be a 3-day 1415.4-mile trek across four states, it was revealed this week by the American Automobile Association.

The colorful route to Sun Valley, Idaho, by far the longest and most rigorous ever attempted by an Economy Run, was held secret until the 29 competing cars were placed in final impound. Thus, they will not have had the opportunity to practice the course. Sponsored by General Petroleum Corp., the run will be held April 14, 15 and 16. Results will be announced April 17.

This year's run will include overnight stops at the south rim of Grand Canyon in Arizona and at Salt Lake City. Every type of driving—through cities, over mountains and on deserts—will be experienced. The hardy drivers will travel 515.5 miles in a maximum of 12 hours, 53 minutes, the first day; 575.3 miles in a maximum of 14 hours the second day; and 324.6 miles in eight hours, 7 minutes, the third day. Total elapsed driving time must not be more than 35 hours and no time may be lost at speed limits.

SECRET ROUTE . . . Here's the 1415.4-mile route between Los Angeles and Sun Valley to be taken by autos in the Mobilgas Economy Run which will get under way April 14. Actual route to be taken was kept a secret until all entering cars were impounded by the American Automobile Association.
